A delegation of diplomats from the lower Indus River Valley, arrived in the new Arab capital of BAGDAD to the court of Caliph al-Mansur to provide him news about their province. They hoped to impress the founder of the ABBASID dynasty with the richness and sophistication of their country by showering him with gifts. They also brought an astronomer

It's name was KANAKA. An expert in reception he could well have made history of Indian administered tests to give to the Caliph. Nothing more is known of this KANAKA. The Caliph immediately ordered them translated into Arabic and their source compared with a text book that became known as the Great SINDHIO No one is sure if the above happens, but something like it must have.
